

JAVIER EDUARDO BECERRA BECERRA

Geologist Ph.D (Federal University of Minas Gerais – UFMG, Brasil) in Economic and Applied Geology, with emphasis on ornamental rocks (Granites, marbles, slates and stonework stones), building materials, industrial minerals and Construction Pathology in civil engineering and architectural heritage. Researcher on Civil Engineering School and Building Pathology specialization (Universidad Santo Tomás - Colombia). Experience in research about pathology development in raw materials, accelerated alteration tests and applied diagnostic to conservation of stone materials used in civil construction and historical monuments. Technical and administrative experience in geological and economic evaluation of mineral resources.